responding to COVID-19

Our administrative team, teaching artists, and coaches have collaborated tirelessly to ensure a dynamic Company experience throughout the COVID-19 crisis:

- Outdoor rehearsals
- In-person with masks whenever possible
- Virtual performances
- Pre-recorded video art collaborations with artists
- Incorporating writing and self-reflection
- Using Zoom to unlock new creativity

Camila

Dancewave Company III
and student for 6+ years:

"Our Virtual DCIII performance was a letter to our future selves. We used Zoom as an advantage, covered our cameras up, turned it upside down, [and performed as if we were] passing energy through the screen. Physically... I thought the dance was very powerful and want to continue doing things like this."

a rich HISTORY

Key Artistic collaboration with Mark Morris Dance Group helped to spark the Youth Company program. Dancewave students performed Morris' "L'Allegro, il Penseroso ed il Moderato" -- the first time a collaboration between an established artist and recreational youth dancers had ever been seen in the NYC area. Morris was inspired to see new life spring from his work when performed by young dancers.

2010 Dancewave Company performed powerful works by David Dorfman and Garth Fagan as the only American program represented at the Aberdeen International Youth Festival in Scotland. Racial tensions among NYC teens at this time sparked the introduction of coaches, "Regroup" discussion sessions and individualized mentoring to the program.

1995 Dancewave founded by Diane Jacobowitz as the Kids Cafe Festival, a unique, celebratory event that highlighted performers in dozens of youth organizations from across all 5 boroughs.

Hundreds of students performed in Kids Cafe Festival performances from 1995-1999 in top NYC venues including BAM and The Kitchen.

1999 Dancewave's Youth Company is founded to expand students' artistic development within a professional company model.

2002 The first of 4 times the Company would be invited to perform at the acclaimed Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, performing works by Mark Morris, David Dorfman, Andrea Miller/Gallim, and Kyle Abraham over the years. Students' command of these socio-politically driven works earned them a standing ovation and a meaningful post-performance talk with the audience.

2019 Grand opening of Dancewave's new state-of-the-art, LEED gold-certified facility in Gowanus, Brooklyn completed a multi-year journey to establish a full-size, full-service dance studio. Two spaces provide students an ADA-accessible home base to train, gather, perform, and continue their professional dance life in the heart of growing downtown Brooklyn.

Company Life

notable performances

2015: Invited by Annie-B Parson to perform on NBC's Jimmy Fallon Show supporting pop singer St. Vincent's "Girl Talk."

2003: Performing Trisha Brown's "On the Floor of the Forest" at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

2016: (at top) Both Company students and alumni performed at Jacob's Pillow summer Dance Festival - Dancewave's fourth appearance! A highlight was "Pupil Suite" and "Snow" by GALLIM.

2010: Dancewave traveled all the way to Aberdeen International Youth Festival in Scotland for the trip of a lifetime!

ALUMNI

out in the world

Dancewave Company alumni leave our program as developed artists, ready to make an impact in the world--regardless of what form dance takes in their lives after graduation. One of our favorite outcomes? When alumni come back to work with us at Dancewave!

Diane

Dancewave Founder & Artistic Director Emeritus:

Dancewave Company gives young people invaluable space to develop their minds, make choices, and build community. That's why we focus our curriculum so often on works with a socio-political focus. They leave our program knowing themselves deeply, ready to face the world.
